Pierce's Rheumatic Cure
FOR RHEUMATISM & NEURALGIA.
A TRIED AND SURE CURE.
This remedy is the result of the research of one of the proprietors who had been a great sufferer for years, and who had tried all the advertised remedies and the skill of many physicians without obtaining relief. A radical cure was obtained, and numerous similar cures effected among his friends and acquaintances, without an exception, have induced him to put it before the public. It was got up without a thought of making it an article of merchandise, but the numerous and increasing demands for it, as its merits have become known, have induced him to advertise it for the benefit of sufferers like himself.
It is an infallible remedy, if persistently used, for those painful maladies of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, as testimonials, too abundant to give in this advertisement, will show. Among these testimonials are those of Mrs. Judge Appleton, E. M. Talcott, J. M. Morrill, (foreman of Hinckley and Holt's Foundry) C. H. Emery, and others of Bangor; W. J. Mitchell, (of the Kineo House, Moosehead Lake.) Alvarado E. Orcutt, of Eddington, a sufferer for fourteen years and at times helpless, having tried the best known remedies and three skillful physicians without effect, after using seven bottles, has been restored to health, and gives his grateful testimonial.
It is an internal remedy, acting on the blood, freeing it from impurities and imparting free and healthy action to the system. It may be used by children and those of the most delicate constitution with perfect safety. Full directions with each bottle.
Price per bottle, $1.00. Liberal discount to the trade. For sale by Druggists generally.
Address orders to Manufacturers and Proprietors.

PRES. MORRILL AND RAILROAD TAXATION.

[From the Lewiston Journal March 24.]

President Morrill of the Maine Central, in his report at the annual meeting of the stockholders of that corporation held at Waterville to-day, devoted most of his space to a fierce assault on Gov. Dingley, heralded by the press a few days since, because of the tax assessed on the Maine Central Railroad Company. His line of assault and criticism was so similar to that pursued in his reflections on the Governor before the Legislative Committee last winter, that there is little need of going over the subject again. We shall certainly decline to follow him in the use of epithets and personal reflections. The course of President Morrill is so extraordinary and so clearly intended to deter any public man in the future from taking the position that powerful railroad corporations should be controlled in the public interests and pay a fair proportion of the public burdens, that the question transcends mere personal considerations and becomes one of great public interest.

The official connection of Governor Dingley with the question of railroad taxation, for which President Morrill personally assaults him, has been this. In his annual address of 1874, the Governor pointed out that large business and property interests, among which he enumerated railroads, were not taxed in anything like the same proportion as other property, and he recommended legislation to equalize these burdens of taxation. The Legislature took the matter up, referred the subject to an able committee, who heard the council of the Maine Central and all the objections that could be raised, inquired into the effect of then existing laws by which only the real estate outside of the track and such few shares as could be reached were taxed, and reported a bill exactly similar to a law on the Massachusetts statute book in everything but the remedy, taxing all railroads in the State which had become so well established as to have a market value. The act passed the Legislature nearly unanimously. By the explicit terms of the act, the Governor and Council assessed all the railroads coming under its provisions, including, of course, the Maine Central and the Atlantic and St. Lawrence.

Neither the Atlantic and St. Lawrence or Maine Central paid any part of the tax, or took any notice of the assessment, and as the tax under the act could be collected only at the end of a long suit, which the roads would carry up to the United States Supreme Court, the Attorney General thought it unwise to commence an action. When the Legislature of 1875 met, the Governor called attention to this condition of things, and, by advice of the Attorney General and Council, requested the Legislature to give the State Treasurer the same remedy for the enforcement of this tax as Massachusetts gave for the collection of a similar tax (by injunction), or as municipalities had for the collection of tax against individuals (by distraining property). The Legislature at once took up the matter and referred it to the Judiciary Committee.

President Morrill appeared before the Judiciary Committee and protested against the enforcement of the tax, claiming that it was illegal and void, and asked, if anything was to be done, that the State bring an action for the tax under the remedy provided by the original act and allow the road to pay after the courts should decide it legal. The main portion of his remarks before the committee, however, was a personal assault on the Governor because of the tax and of his recommendations, in which he showed a determination to punish the executive for the action of the Legislature in taxing Railroads, seeming to lose sight of the fact that the tax was required by the Legislature of 1874, and that the Governor was only doing his official duty in endeavoring to have it enforced.

The Judiciary Committee carefully examined the matter and unanimously agreed with the Governor and Attorney General that the remedy for the enforcement of the tax was inadequate, and that without regard to the question of the legality of the tax, so far as it affected the Maine Central and the Atlantic and St. Lawrence roads (which was a question for the courts to settle) it was the duty of the Legislature of 1875 to provide an adequate remedy for a tax required by the Legislature of 1874, unless they were prepared to recommend its abatement for illegality—which they were not. Accordingly, the committee reported a bill which unanimously passed the Legislature, giving substantially the same remedy for the enforcement of the tax against railroads as is provided for taxes against individuals—a remedy which requires the payment of the tax first, and then gives any railroad which regards the tax illegal, the right to bring an action to recover the tax and test legality. This is precisely what private individuals are obliged to do, and there seems to be no reason why a corporation should be more highly favored than a citizen. And yet, President Morrill has seen fit to express the greatest indignation at the idea of asking his road to do as private citizens are obliged to do.

We are not called upon to discuss the question of the legality of the tax imposed by the Legislature upon old and well-established railroads. That is a question for the courts. And yet we cannot forbear remarking that so far as the tax reaches the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth, the Great Falls and Conway, the Boston and Maine and St. Croix railroads, no one questions its legality. Indeed, some of these roads have promptly paid. The Maine Central and the Atlantic and St. Lawrence claim that a provision in their original charters exempts them practically from any other taxation than that of their real estate outside of their track, except the tax on the shares, which in the case of one road are very nearly all, and in the case of the other a large majority, owned or at least held out of the State. In case of the A. and St. L. the legality of the tax will rest largely on the construction given to that alleged exemption, and, (in case the construction is given which the road claims), on the power of one Legislature to bind successive legislatures in this manner. There are different views among good lawyers on these points, and they ought to be and will be settled justly to all parties. In the case of the Maine Central still another question is involved, viz., as to whether the present consolidated Maine Central is entitled to the exemption claimed for the original road; for it should be remembered that two of the roads which go to make up the consolidated road had no such exemption in their charters at the time of consolidation. This fact President Morrill has never had the candor to suggest. He even quotes from the old charter of the original road certain exemption clauses, and ignores the fact that the State holds that those provisions have not been transferred to the consolidated Maine Central.

Rev. William Tilley has commenced his labors as pastor of the First Baptist church in Jefferson.

PENOBSCOT COUNTY JAIL.

What the March of Progress Has Done for Our Criminal Classes.

Many of the readers of the WHIG AND COURIER remember the old Jail, many persons who are not readers of this paper have good reasons of their own for remembering it distinctly. It was a miserable place in which to incarcerate a human being, bearing about the same relation to the new building which has replaced it, as the villainous lock-up under the City Hall does to the prospective lock-up that is to be provided by an enlightened and humane City Government. "Durance vile" is the phrase that correctly describes incarceration in our Jail of the past, or in our station-house of to-day.

For a long series of years the impress of the dark ages was clearly distinguishable in the dark places provided for prisoners, as well as in their treatment, the essentials of light and air—the inalienable right of every living human being—having been utterly ignored. The progressive ideas of a higher civilization have taught us that criminals as a rule are the victims of misfortune in birth, education, or circumstances, that a majority of them have the same feelings as others of their kind, and are susceptible to the same kindly influences. But while the necessity continues to exist for society to protect itself from lawlessness and crime, places of confinement will continue as a contemporaneous necessity.

Aside from its architectural superiority to the old Jail,—the present structure being one of the best in the city,—in its increased attention to the comfort of its inmates it is a vast improvement. In the single essential of light, for instance, either one of the eight large windows in the new Jail covers a larger superficial space than the entire lighting capacity of the old building.

In the old Jail as many as forty persons were frequently crowded together, while there were not accommodations for more than half that number. The walls were low,—perhaps seven feet in height, and at best were nothing better than dungeons. During the day the whole crowd were let loose together, and the result was of such a nature as to demand constant vigilance on the part of those in charge. During this time, when the worst and most dangerous had liberty to arrange concerted plans for escape, since Mr. Whitney entered upon his duties as Jailer, in 1859, he has been so fortunate as to never lose a prisoner. Not infrequently in the old Jail the total amount of the bonds of the prisoners exceeded that of the Jailer, which is $25,000.

Mr. Whitney has also been fortunate in another respect, for in the sixteen years he has been in charge there has never been a death from any cause in Jail, and no one has been carried away sick, whose term was unexpired. This speaks well for the sanitary condition under his management, as does the fact that during this time there has never occurred a case of malignant fever, nor has any epidemic broken out.

During the years Mr. Whitney has remained in charge the county has had four different sheriffs,—C. D. Gilmore, John S. Chadwick, John H. Wilson and Samuel G. Jerrard, the present incumbent. He has had a total of not less than 5,000 prisoners under his care, of all ages, sexes and conditions, of whom about a dozen were charged with capital offences. Mr. Whitney estimates that liquor was the cause of seven-eighths of the commitments, either directly or indirectly. Incidentally it may be mentioned that there has never been a hanging in this county, and that portions of the unused gallows prepared for the execution of Spencer in 1836, or thereabouts, are still stored in the attic of the stable connected with the Jail.

In addition to the many advantages of the new Jail, which ranks as one of the best in the country, the County Commissioners have gone a step further. Believing that idleness is not conducive to good morals, and that manual labor is good for mind and body alike, they have provided the Jail Workshop, recently opened, which has been fully described in these columns. The problem of convict labor has never been fully solved, but the success already attained seems fully to vindicate its utility and desirability. Its application to Jails, where the terms of imprisonment are short, and where changes in the workmen are consequently more frequent, present additional complications for consideration.

But if imprisonment is designed for reformation, as well as punishment, the value of the Workshop,—properly conducted, with foremen competent to deal kindly and intelligently with the men,—is hardly to be questioned. As a financial investment it may, or may not, show a balance on the credit side; but in its influence on the future of the prisoners, particularly those young either in years or in evil practices, it cannot fail to make adequate returns to the moral health of the community by which it is maintained.

The reports of the lessees and those directly in charge of the Workshop, have all been of the most favorable character thus far. From twenty to twenty-five men and boys are daily employed, and the work done by them shows that they take a pride in what they do. Mr. Dean, foreman on the second floor, has been in the business 32 years, and says that he never had a better crew of men in his life. On the other floors, and in the broom-factory above, substantially the same report is made.

The one remaining thing to be done for the unfortunate persons who occupy the Jail, for which provision is happily made by the laws of the State, is the furnishing of one hour's instruction each evening in the English branches, to all who care to take advantage of such opportunities for improvement. This matter is now being considered and arrangements will shortly be perfected for the "night school" in Jail.

THE BOSTON SPELLING MATCH.

THE REPORTERS VS. THE HIGH SCHOOL BOYS.

The spelling match in Boston, Tuesday night between the boys of the High School on one hand and a party of compositors, proof readers and reporters on the other resulted in a victory for the boys. The Herald gives a lively account of the match, from which we select the following:

The audience is now impatient, and everything being ready, we begin. If age is to be the criterion the school boys will soon go down; but the youngsters face their middle-aged competitors with confidence. Here goes the first word—"attorney." The pressman smiles and spells it without a falter. A few minutes later and then "courtesy" falls to the turn of a small boy, who is nervous and stammers "C-o-u-r-t-s-y," which causes him to retire while the man opposite corrects the error. The next victim is a compositor and a Herald man, whose sudden appearance before an audience confuses him, and he will put an "e" instead of the necessary "i" in the first syllable of "millennium." He steps out blushing, while the crowd laughs and applauds at a youngster making good the breach. The trifling perplexities of "proboscis," "reprove" "proselyte" and "negligee" cause not a stumble but on "phylology" a boy drops from the ranks, having carelessly skipped the "l." "Farinaceous" has nameless terrors for a trembling pressman, who stumbles over "double r" in the first syllable, tries to correct himself with "phar" and retires discomfited. Now a compositor goes down for introducing an "a" into "superintendent," and another printer corrected his proof just in time prompted by the laughter of the audience, to substitute "e" for "i" in "sustenance." There is a dispute on "italicize," the dictionary is consulted and the press man who uses an "s" retires. "Turgescency" slays one of the men, who is now paired with a boy who falls into a "fright" on the simple word "surfeit." Here is a printer who can't spell "lettuce," the pronunciation of the last syllable causing him to introduce a fatal vowel. The word "condite," somewhat out of use, promises to "stick" the typo, but he hits it right. "Rarefy," and "resuscitate" make victims of one from each side, and then, Oh, horror! a printer can't spell "halibut" without a "haal," which causes such jeers from the crowd that he will probably never relish a meal from the fish again. Three are required to give a correct spelling of "comatose," there being "toes" and "tose." Two boys and a man give up on "cataclysm," and then a pressman gives it correctly. The words are now rapidly growing perplexing. There was much lameness showed over "dignose," "opodeldoc," "educt," "caulk," "deleterious" and "anomalous."

An hour's spelling has now reduced the contestants to eighteen boys against fifteen of the pressmen. And from this point they drop off faster and faster, while the audience grows enthusiastic and heartily applauds each side. Prominent among the men is one from the Advertiser office, whose distinguishing mark are a white hat and his promptness in meeting and baffling the attacks. He flinches not at "mesogastric," nor at "malfeasance," though weaker champions fall thick and fast at such trifles as "foliaceous," "pestilent" and "nonesuch." Finally the word "syzygy" comes to him, and he objects to it as "technical." A dozen boys protest and shout out their ability to spell the word. The committee, however sustains the objection, and instead of the objectionable word dashes off "anthropophagous" without a wink, while the crowd shouts and cheers. The ranks thin out faster and faster, and when two on either side have "slipped up" on "harangue" there are but ten left—five facing five. The master calls out "phoenix" and a boy fails. It is the turn of "white hat." He is stuck. No chance for an objection. He never saw the word in his life. He hesitates, looks every way, and in sheer desperation gasped "foelix," which, of course, takes him from the lists. "Promontory" and "saccharine" carry off two men, and now three boys are the sole surviving representatives of the press. A boy drops off, then another, and now it is single-handed—boy to man. Who will give out first? Soon settled. "Conferrable" is propounded to the man, who seems on shaky ground. He gets an "r" instead of the "rr" and drops to his seat. The schools are victorious, and the boys shout and crowd around the hero, who received the first prize an elegant copy of Worcester's Unabridged. His name is Frank M. Elsbree, and his place is the English high school. Mr. Geo. Kimball, proof reader in the Transcript office, takes the second prize, a volume of Webster.

BESSIE TURNER'S EVIDENCE.

As the testimony of the young girl, Bessie Turner, is conceded to be among the most important of the Beecher trial, we subjoin the comments of the N. Y. Tribune of Thursday, upon the result of the efforts of the adroit counsel for the plaintiff to break her down.

MISS TURNER RUNS THE GAUNTLET SAFELY.

The rout of Mr. Fullerton in his contest with Miss Turner was complete before the recess was taken yesterday. After an hour's rest he declined to renew the attack, and immediately on resuming the session at half-past 2, he signified that he was done with the witness. If any in the audience had anticipated that the witness or the counsel for the defense would pursue the advantage they were disappointed. The conquerors were magnanimous. Unlike the bear in the frontier fable, they did not refuse to let go, and permitted Mr. Fullerton to make his retreat as gracefully as possible under the circumstances by declining to enter into an elaborate re-direct examination.

The manner of Miss Turner on the stand differed in no sense from her demeanor on preceding days, already fully described in the Tribune. She appeared to less advantage in the early part of yesterday's cross-examination in consequence of misapprehension of the question put to her. She was compelled to admit two or three discrepancies between her statement before the Committee and on the present trial; but explained, as she had done before, that she had gone before the Committee unexpectedly, without preparation, and had testified at random as to matters she had seen and heard and had been told, chiefly by Mrs. Tilton. Now, she had testified after preparation and thought, and had been restricted to what she knew of her own knowledge. Once or twice during yesterday's proceedings the witness was afforded opportunity again to imitate Mr. Tilton and Mrs. Morse, and she did so in the same language and with the same gestures as on former occasions, and with equal effect on the audience.

Toward the close of the cross-examination Mr. Fullerton made a faint attack upon the witness's character, evidently with the design of showing that some of her associations had been bad, and that she lied in the fabrication of documents which had been produced in evidence. The first of these inquiries brought out a noteworthy fact still further illustrating the singular domestic affairs of Mr. Tilton's household; and the second finally led to the introduction on the cross-examination of evidence which for weeks past the defense have vainly tried to get into the case. The first incident alluded to was the introduction of the fact that Miss Turner had been employed several years ago at a place called the Dollar Store, which did not at that time bear a very enviable reputation, and that she had been discharged from that employment. Mr. Tilton during this part of the examination was handing written questions to Mr. Fullerton, and the witness, probably supposing that he was suggesting these unpleasant questions, took her little revenge by telling promptly that she was employed at the Dollar Store and was discharged, and then adding immediately that at the time she was a boarder in Mr. Tilton's house. The effect of this retort can only be appreciated by those who were present, for it cannot be described. The second incidents occurred at the close of Miss Turner's testimony, and was its fitting climax. Her two letters to Mrs. Tilton exculpating Mr. Tilton—denying in guarded equivocal terms the stories of insults and outrages he had offered the witness—were shown to her; and she was finally asked if the letters thus signed stated truth or falsehood. The purpose, of course, was to commit her to an equivocal admission that they were falsehoods and that she had deliberately signed falsehoods. She gave a qualified answer, but the plaintiff's counsel insisted on striking out the qualification and letting the positive "Yes" stand as her answer. Mr. Porter and Mr. Tracy sprang to the rescue, and nearly half an hour was spent in an earnest and at times acrimonious debate, in which Judge Neilson finally took part and suggested another form of question, which acted like oil upon the troubled waters. It was adopted and put by Mr. Fullerton. It was in effect an inquiry "Why, if her letter was not true she had signed it?" The witness instantly and unhesitatingly acted out "Because I loved Mrs. Tilton and I wanted to do it, because she said if I would put my name to that paper I would get Tilton out of all his difficulties with Henry C. Bowen; that that story had got to Mr. Bowen's ears and that all that was needed was my signature, and my retraction of that." The counsel for the plaintiff made no attempt to stop her, and thus she injected into the case the very evidence of the purpose with which the letters were manufactured which the defence have been using their best arts to develop. The counsel for the plaintiff seemed utterly dumb-founded, and made no attempt to stop her, and finally adjourned, forgetting to move to strike out the improper answer. Loud applause followed the reply of the witness, in which there was mingled a great deal of laughter; and for ten minutes after adjournment at recess the friends of Beecher were gathered around the young woman congratulating her.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The Morning Star reports a deep religious interest at Barker's Island.

Seven persons were received into the Congregational church at Boothbay Harbor, on profession of faith, March 7.

The High street Christian Society in Skowhegan have voted unanimously to make the pews in the church free for one year.

Rev. Dr. B. F. Shaw is at home in Waterville, on a brief visit, after a winter of successful missionary labor at Houlton.

About fifty in all have been converted in St. George since the revival meetings commenced two weeks ago, and the work still goes on.

The Pine street church building committee in Portland, have accepted the plan for new church offered by Mr. E. P. Starbuck, of Boston.

Rev. Mr. Perkins, the new pastor of Casco street church in Portland, is proving very popular and he draws a large congregation each Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Houghton, of the Universalist church in Bath, having accepted a call to Grand Haven, the Bath society will call a minister with as little delay as possible.

The new Congregational church at Whitneyville was dedicated on Wednesday the 10th inst. Dedication sermon by Rev. Mr. Bowler, of Machias.

The building committee of the High street Universalist society in Auburn, are ready to receive proposals for the building of their new brick church edifice.

The Lewiston and Auburn Ministerial Association are devising ways and means by which to co-operate with the temperance reform clubs of these places.

There is a revival in progress in Freeman, Rev. David H. Cowan is laboring there with much success. Many conversions are reported, still the interest continues unabated.

Rev. W. H. Bolster contemplates leaving Wiscasset, where he is at present settled over the First Parish Congregational church. His new field of labor is not decided upon.

Rev. Mr. Purington, of Aroostook, has received and accepted a call to the pastorate of the Universalist society in Fairfield and will enter on the duties of his new place of labor the first Sabbath in April.

The Maine Methodist Conference will be held at Bath, May 5th, and the East Maine Conference at Calais, May 12th. Bishop Andrews will preside at the former and Bishop Haven at the latter.

Rev. E. M. Edwards was installed as pastor of the Free Baptist church in Brunswick village, on Thursday evening; the sermon was by Rev. Mr. Burgess, of Lewiston, and the address to the church by Rev. Mr. Penney, of Augusta.

A deep religious interest prevails at West Pembroke. Some of different denominations who were in the back-ground, cold in their affections as to religious matters, have come forward and acknowledged their wanderings and have revived in spirit.

The Rev. George. E. Matthews, of Auburn, has declined the call to become the pastor of the Baptist church in Brunswick. He has received a unanimous call from the church in Thomaston, at a salary of $1500, and this he will undoubtedly accept.

The Executive Committee of the Y. M. C. Association of Lewiston, have voted inexpedient to employ a City Missionary after the close of this financial year April 15, 1875. They propose to expend their limited funds in more central and better rooms.

Rev. Mr. Goodenough has received and accepted a call from the Universalist society to supply the pulpits of Belfast and Stockton the present year. He is to preach two sermons each Sunday, in the morning at Belfast, and in the afternoon at Stockton.

A revival of religion is in progress in Kennebunk. The Congregational Methodist and Baptist denominations have joined together and are holding union meetings twice a day—in the afternoon and evening. A deep religious interest has been awakened and bids fair to expand.

The Universalist parish in Winthrop, with their pretty church and parsonage—Rev. A. Bosserman pastor—are doing well. They have over $500 in the bank, bearing interest, and are behind only about $100, which they design to raise without drawing on their fund. They also have a legal parish organization of over 60 members.

The Baptist society at West Lubec have been fitting up their church in good style. They have been without a pastor for nearly a year, deciding it wise to dispense with preaching for a while and take the money they would pay the preacher to put repairs on their church. Their church numbers something like 200 members.

A gentleman has been making a bible canvass of Bath, with the following result: Number of families visited, 1,427, consisting of 1,323 American, 57 Irish, 31 French, 6 Scotch, 5 German, 3 English, 1 Danish and 1 Hungarian. Families destitute of an entire bible, 30, of which number 23 were American families. In West Bath 71 families were visited, of which number 3 were without an entire Bible.

The religious interest in Brooks is increasing. The Methodists and Baptists are united as one in the work, and over a score have already given their hearts to the Savior. Back-sliders are being reclaimed, and are returning home to their father's house where there is bread enough and to spare. The meetings continued all last week and most of this, under the direction of Rev. A. J. Clifford.

The next quarterly meeting of the Western Maine Baptist Social Union, will be held at the Falmouth Hotel, Portland, on Monday evening, March 29th, at 6 o'clock. Question proposed for discussion: "The most practical way of utilizing the lay element of our churches." Papers will be presented by Rev. W. T. Chase, of Lewiston and Geo. D. Emery, esq., of Portland.

CONNECTICUT

The interest lately manifested with reference to the political campaign in New Hampshire, is now transferred to Connecticut, where State officers and four Congressmen are to be elected on April [illegible], a week from next Monday. The contestants for the Governorship are Gov. Ingersoll, Democratic candidate for re-election, and Hon. Jas. Lloyd Green, the Republican nominee. Governor Ingersoll is popular with his party and outside of politics stands well with the people. The Republican candidate Mr. Green has been Mayor of Norwich for many years, and is strongly devoted to the principles of the party. He will be remembered as having ordered a salute in honor of President [illegible] Proclamation and later another in honor of President Grant's Louisiana message declaring his purpose of maintaining the laws. He is a man of high character and warmly esteemed in the State.

Governor Ingersoll has been twice elected, first in 1873 by a majority of 3363, a temperance ticket receiving 2 [illegible] votes, and again in 1874 by a majority of [illegible], the prohibition ticket receiving 4960 votes. In both years the Republican candidate was Hon. Henry B. Harrison, of New Haven, one of the best men in the State. It will be seen, therefore, that the Republicans must carry strong odds to come [illegible] and if they do so the result will be of special significance.

In the first district Gen. J. R. Hawley of the Union army, editor of the Hartford Courant and a Congressman of proved ability, is opposed by G. M. Landers, Democrat, of New Britain, and the Democrats are bending every energy to defeat the Republican at [illegible]. The district is close, Gen. Hawley's majority in 1872 being [illegible], but our friends are working [illegible] hope of a Republican success. In the 2d and 3d districts, Messrs. S. W. Kellogg and H. H. Starkweather, both of them popular members, are candidates for re-election, opposed by Messrs. Phelps and [illegible], Democrats. In 1872 Kellogg had but 76 majority, the third ticket having 510 votes, while Starkweather had 1177 majority in [illegible] of a temperance vote of 57. [illegible] In the fourth district W. H. Barnum, the millionaire Democrat whose Congressional record has been severely overhauled by journals of his own party, claims [illegible] of re-election, and the prospect seems to be in his favor, though the Republicans are putting forth their best to counteract [illegible].

The Republicans have an excellent platform [illegible] exceptional candidates, while [illegible] of the Democrats in the State during the past two years has been anything but creditable. [illegible]

A GENTLE REJOINDER.

The moxa which we applied to the Rev. [illegible] conductor of the Northern Border [illegible] paragraph last week has [illegible] blister, and in this week's issue [illegible] flowing through three columns of space [illegible] Doctor of Divinity and of Laws. [illegible] the highest literary standing [illegible] remarkable jumble [illegible] a newspaper [illegible] scholarly, classic and elegant composition [illegible] the eminent divine has applied himself [illegible] a whole page of that [illegible] we are treated to such specimens of [illegible] The [illegible] young gentleman of The Whig [illegible] from a bar room [illegible] who certainly never had anything beyond a common school education, and not much of that — a grown up but irascible [illegible] — estimate of common sense [illegible] scavenger paper — a gutter snipe [illegible] — "slops of his mud bucket" [illegible] THE WHIG [illegible] Republicans," etc. [illegible]

Discreetly ignoring the disagreeable facts to which we called his attention, and [illegible] omitting from the last issue of the paper the advertisement of that scheme punishable by the laws of this State with fine and imprisonment, he blushingly alleges that we have given a "blazing biography" of himself, the only serious charge in which is that "some college or other has seen fit to affix to our [his] name the highest of all literary titles." And the modest personage proceeds to inform us that we might have saved ourselves the trouble, as his biography has been long ago written by "older and abler pens," and that we can find the distinguished record in "almost every biographical dictionary and encyclopædia published in this country within the last twenty or thirty years." If any one but the Border man should write in that way of himself there would be a suspicion of egotism, in his case it can be appropriately characterized by only one word—Tefft.

But the Reverend Doctor is mistaken in attributing to us an attempt at sketching his biography, we could hardly hope to compete with those "older and abler pens" especially if it should prove that they were guided by the modest gentleman's own fingers. It is possible that some familiar incidents were not fully treated in the biography "written long ago," but we made no reference thereto, simply confining our remarks to matters of a recent date and directly involving the qualifications of our contemporary for preaching sermons to us or to the public. We have an impression that he has preached himself out in this community, and that the "string of literary titles" so ostentatiously paraded have ceased to inspire awe since their possessor has demonstrated his ability by patching up the most dreary, egotistical and slovenly edited sheet in Maine. Nothing is so sure to prick the bladder of pretension as the attempt of a self-conceited person to edit a public journal, and if the newspaper files of the country furnish an example of a more sickly collapse than that of the editor of the Northern Border, it has escaped our attention.

We cannot avoid a smile, which will be shared by most of our readers, at the suggestive collocation of Dr. Tefft's query as to who would think of consulting us personally or getting our advice upon any matter, and his complacent remark:

"We have known the citizens of Bangor and of Maine, and they have known us, from the time when the Whig [was] in its cradle, and we imagine that there is nothing that the hot youth can say to change the record."

We confess that the public were not indebted to our advice for that celebrated Swedish immigration enterprise or for investments in those visionary Washburn windfalls. We have never been connected with steel operations, and no man has a worthless stock in his pocket for which we are responsible. Were the case otherwise we might feel anxious to change the record. Those who have been misled by plausible charmers can lay the account [illegible] where it belongs, but not at our door. We rebuked the Northern Border for its insolent arraignment of this paper and its friends [illegible] Republicans, and we repeat [illegible] that the estimation of the conductor of the Border in this community is not such as to warrant the assumption of superior virtue [illegible] in an honorable way with [illegible] preying upon their neighbor.

We are willing to submit to criticism from all proper sources, but we positively decline being lectured on honesty [illegible] by a Doctor of Divinity who [illegible] the cloth by [illegible] in defiance of the penal laws of the State [illegible] after weeks of [illegible] the editor who impudently boasts in a Bangor paper that by sharp practice [illegible] compensation the full advantage [illegible] enterprise in which our people [illegible] the slightest [illegible]

Now we wish the Rev. Dr. B. F. Tefft to distinctly understand that he has [illegible] the subject [illegible] his opinion of this paper [illegible] most [illegible] that we should [illegible] the wisdom [illegible] meet his approval. [illegible] upon a lottery which [illegible]

The Augusta Journal always [illegible] reported that a heavy stockholder of the Maine Central, residing in the Kennebec valley, has been offered [illegible] The offer was [illegible] stockholder [illegible]

The Brunswick Telegraph makes change of appearance in its new dress of type and shows a general improvement of make-up. We are sorry, however, that it should [illegible] its page by reproducing a very dubious [illegible] from the New York Sun.

The Kennebec Journal remarks that the Bourbons have given up all hating the Independent Republicans [illegible] Louisiana resolve. The Bangor Commercial dismisses them with [illegible] "Poor Christiancy? poor Conover! poor Pollock! poor McMillan!" [illegible]

"THE BANGOR WHIG is applying the heroic treatment of moxa to the editor of the Northern Border. We fear the remedy will not prove efficacious, the disease is chronic, if not constitutional."—Ellsworth American.

As some of our readers may not be familiar with the treatment above mentioned which is only resorted to in extreme cases we quote Worcester's definition of the moxa:

"A cottony substance prepared in Japan from the dried leaves of a species of wormwood and used as an actual cautery by placing a small cone of it on the skin and setting fire to it at the top.

Any substance which by gradual combustion on or near the skin, is employed as a counter irritant."

We are inclined to share our Ellsworth neighbor's doubt as to the permanent efficacy of any treatment in this case, but there are evident symptoms that the remedy is powerfully working. The American must be patient, as we are operating on a pachydermatous subject.

A Washington special says that the statements that the Senatorial excursion to Mexico has reference to annexation projects are the wildest canards. The most prominent persons who will go have been noted for their consistent opposition to all filibustering schemes.

The Hartford Post thinks that "the first thought on rising from a reading of the speech of Senator Eaton on Louisiana is of the intellectual poverty of the performance." His attempt to revive obsolete Calhounism is certainly rich enough.

IMPORTANT TO BONDHOLDERS. In connection with the call of three millions of bonds for the sinking fund, several questions have been raised as to lost coupons. The Treasury Department has decided that all such coupons must be deducted from the face value of the bond, and the loss borne by the owner of the bond. There is no way of preventing the payment of a lost or stolen coupon.

The Louisville Courier-Journal still maintains that the South at the time of the Rebellion had a recognized right of property in man, which might have been annulled with respect to the fighting rebels, but its abrogation as to old men, infants and women, as to minors and non-combatants, was such an act of confiscation as the world has not known within two centuries.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

[illegible]

The Grammar school of Miss Corcoran and the Primary school of Miss Sargent, will not open at the Bower street schoolhouse till a week from Monday.

Mr J H Morse the eloquent lecturer on Spiritualism will deliver the last lectures of his present engagement in Music Hall to-morrow afternoon and evening.

The entertainment by the young ladies of the Congregational Society of Orono advertised to occur on Thursday night was postponed on account of the storm until this evening. A fine programme has been prepared.

The St John train which left that city on Thursday morning arrived here at one o'clock yesterday afternoon after a severe tussle with the snow drifts. The train due last evening was also several hours behind time arriving about 3 o'clock this morning.

An alarm of fire was given last night at 9.30 o'clock, and was caused by boys [illegible] with the Hammond street [illegible]

To-morrow being Easter Sunday, the customary special services will be celebrated in the Episcopal and Catholic churches. These will all be handsomely decorated [illegible]

There will be no meeting of the Boys Temperance Club to-night.

Tickets are selling well for the Handel Concert, to be given on Monday night.

The opening of the rooms of the Art Association will occur on next Friday evening.

A successful antiquarian supper was given at the Hammond street vestry last evening.

Measles and mumps have for sometime played havoc with the recitations at the State College.

The Penobscot County Farmers Club meet at the Fuller school house at 10 o'clock this forenoon.

The Reform Club will hold a meeting in Norombega Hall at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, as usual.

Dr Abbie E Cutter, of Boston will give a lecture to the ladies, in Music Hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

"Good Friday" was observed by appropriate religious services in the Catholic churches and St John's Episcopal church, yesterday.

It is understood that the students of the [illegible] College at Orono are arranging for a [illegible] of two or three lectures, within the next few weeks.

The ladies' select class met in Music [illegible] yesterday afternoon for the last time [illegible] one. The finale will be an extra dance [illegible] Music Hall, on Wednesday evening.

BANGOR WOMAN'S CRUSADE

The Successful Celebration Yesterday of the First Anniversary of its Permanent Organization

Meetings Morning Afternoon and Evening—Stirring Addresses by Clergymen and Others

Morning

PRAYER MEETING IN CITY HALL

[illegible] organization of the Bangor Woman's Crusade [illegible]

[illegible] parties of the meeting — a prayer meeting [illegible] City Hall in the morning [illegible] in the evening.

The [illegible] at 10 o'clock the exercises being conducted by Mrs Crosman. Mr Pickard read selections from the Scriptures and the opening prayer was made by Mr Willey. After singing the time until the [illegible] was occupied in prayer by members of the Crusade and others who were present.

Afternoon

SOCIAL MEETING AT CITY HALL

At 3 o'clock the social meeting was held in City Hall the audience being largely composed of ladies. Members of the Crusade and of the Reform Club occupied seats on the platform.

Mrs Crosman presided and selections from the Scriptures were read by Miss Mary Crosby, prayer was offered by Mrs [illegible] the audience were invited to join in singing "How gentle God's commands."

The President said that one year ago the permanent organization of the Women's Crusade was effected. As the first meeting a year ago was devoted to prayer so the first meeting to-day was a prayer meeting; the afternoon meeting she desired should be devoted to short speeches. The success of the first year's labors seemed to warrant the devoting of an entire day to the anniversary. The question of moral reform is agitating not only this city but the entire world and with the blessing of God the Crusade will continue the same work during the ensuing year as in the past.

A paper was read by Mrs Dunham relating particularly to the missionary labors of the Crusade. Of the station house she spoke in very emphatic language [illegible]

After singing an hymn, a lady said she could not make a speech, but she wished on such an occasion to say a few words. When invited a year ago to join the Crusade she had deeply felt her inability, but the results have far exceeded her most sanguine hopes; she also referred to the lockup, and its uncomfortable condition, to the Jail, and the beneficial results which have followed the visits of the Crusade. In conclusion she invited any present who had not already done so, to sign the pledge.

A member of Crusade said that for a long time it had been her solemn prayer that something might be done to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage in this city. When almost discouraged the Crusade came to the rescue. She wished those who claim to be in sympathy with the movement to give in the assistance it needs.

C D Norcross thought the great results of the past year should be largely credited to the Crusade, and that there is every reason for encouragement.

A lady spoke eloquently making the special subject of her remarks the question that has been raised on the part of some persons as to the desirability of associating with the members of the Crusade and Reform Club in their labors.

B F Walker said the grandest act of his life was when he signed the pledge before; he had been the drunkard for the whole Walker family. He had visited as many as 200 rum-shops in Bangor [illegible] day. He is not afraid to talk temperance to a million people and he would make them hear if they [illegible] clear to the top of [illegible] hill.

A lady said it was the love of Christ in their hearts which had [illegible] the ladies of the Crusade to go out after the dear young men of Bangor and work for their salvation.

W E Long [illegible] said that for 25 years he had [illegible] [illegible]

MASS MEETING AT NORUMBEGA HALL

[illegible]

In conclusion Mr Crosman [illegible]

In the absence of Mrs B[illegible] [illegible] Secretary [illegible] really Mr Savary [illegible] full resume of the Crusade doing during the first year of its [illegible] 9 [illegible] months.

After singing "Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord," Mrs [illegible] of the Crusade presented Mrs Crosman with [illegible]. Mrs Crosman responded briefly and [illegible] silent feeling.

[illegible] the public judging [illegible] he [illegible] that he did not formerly believe [illegible] The great curse [illegible] down and much [illegible] many people think. Had it not [illegible] the Crusade [illegible] Reform Club [illegible] members. Had it not been [illegible] Crusade there would not exist [illegible] as is at present the case that [illegible] a single saloon in Bangor making profit from the sale of rum. The [illegible] of the Reform Club and Crusade is [illegible] because it is right. If ever [illegible] the judgment of [illegible] has been [illegible] became a temperance man, for if there exists a man who should be cut off from a happy future it is he who sells liquor. Public sentiment [illegible] well worked up and the beginning of success can be seen in this city and other communities. The rum seller is the worst enemy to be met, there are [illegible] here, and the newspapers [illegible] largely working for selfish aggrandizement rather than from principle. [illegible] praised God that the clergymen of Bangor are not apathetic but are as true as the needle is to the pole. Newspapers help as they ought, a few of them. Frequently men take the papers to get temperance news but fail to find it, and driven to what were once called rum papers to find what they wish. [illegible] this direction there will have to be a reform for people would rather have [illegible] or three columns of temperance reports than so much of other matter. [The speaker read a long extract from a paper setting forth the general work of the Crusade and the various forms of operation which they encounter.] As to [illegible] one dead drink but [illegible] glasses of cider to get one glass of rum.

[illegible] Rev Mr Brown said that in moral reform we behold milestones that we should not pass by unnoticed. The present day is one of tender interest—a day of days—a day of congratulations upon the sublime work accomplished by loving hearts and ready hands. Of its extent no careful estimate can be made. These heroic women are making history that will be read with profit by future generations. These ladies have brought joy and gladness to many homes once sad and desolate. It is a work above all others [illegible] [illegible] by the Ladies Crusade [illegible] temperance [illegible] never before. They have given [illegible] woman's power. [illegible]

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

Tenth Day of Carson's Trial. Close of the Cross Examination of the Prisoner's Son. Mrs Carson on the Stand

Hon JONAS CUTTING, [illegible] Justice Presiding; [illegible] Clerk

Forenoon

[illegible]

Mrs Dougherty [illegible] Witness [illegible] On the day of Brawn's death [illegible] conversation between him and his father about going up river. Has heard the testimony of the witnesses about the knife [illegible] [illegible] says he [illegible] butcher knife, thinks [illegible] [illegible] common black handled butcher knife [illegible] Witness with his little brothers [illegible] [illegible] then she struck him on the head and with the back of the [illegible] up and sprained it so he could not [illegible] [illegible] Dr Perley set it. Mrs [illegible] [illegible] for stealing potatoes [illegible] him.

Cross-examined by Prosecution. Thinks beating took place about a month after [illegible] death. Witness talked with her [illegible] that same night in his house; she [illegible] crying and [illegible] appeared just the same as ever after [illegible]. That's the only trouble witness ever [illegible] with her, never went into her garden digging potatoes. Very frequently set the [illegible] across during blueberry time and [illegible] them he should charge 5 or 10 cents [illegible], but never made much out of it. Mrs Dougherty never gave him anything — [illegible] his father was not at home the day [illegible] the inquest. When he got home something was said about the inquest; can't remember what; can't remember whether or not what Mrs Dougherty testified to at the inquest was told in the house that night. Thinks his father asked if there were any scars on Brawn when found, [illegible] some one said there was one over [illegible] eye. When Brawn stopped at his house [illegible] wasn't at work anywhere, he helped [illegible] some in his garden on the Island [illegible] Dougherty frequently visited his house sometimes with her sewing, sometimes [illegible] has taken her meals there, thinks Bridget McMann and Johnnie [illegible] have been there at the same time with Mrs Dougherty. His father and Mr Brawn unloaded the wood that Sunday morning before they started up river. Thinks the children went to the boat first. Mr Brawn next, his father, mother, little sister and himself went next, Mrs Dougherty went last with [illegible] Brawn paddled in the boat about [illegible] Brawn was in the stern of the boat when they left. Carson was not there when he heard of Brawn's death. [illegible]

[illegible]

MRS [illegible] CARSON

[illegible]

[illegible] up to [illegible] time Brawn talked [illegible] drinking freely [illegible] Knows there was liquor in the boat [illegible] saw it first [illegible] saw them drink [illegible] Saw her husband, Brawn and Mrs Dougherty drink; they drank from a pint bottle in the boat before they got out at [illegible] Mr Brawn took it out of his overcoat pocket. Saw Mrs Dougherty drink in the boat at Reed's Landing before the children got out. Mrs Dougherty took the flask she drank out of the pocket of Carson's duster pocket, and she treated two of the Carson children [illegible] wouldn't drink; witness knew it was liquor because she could smell it, and knew it was something stronger than water by the children's faces. Witness did not taste of any liquor on that excursion, and never drinks liquor. Mrs Dougherty did not go away from the boat there that witness knows of. Witness went up to the school house with the children, her husband came after her and wanted them to go back to the boat; all went back again. Mrs Dougherty, Brawn, Carson, witness and her two children got into boat again. Annie Dougherty, Bridget and Janie McMann went home, the rest of them went up to Sunkhaze stream, when they got there her husband fished a little and she with the children went after berries. Brawn and Mrs Dougherty remained in the boat. Never heard any conversation between her husband and Brawn about $10.00, witness never said "If I was a man I would smash the Yankee coward," never used such an expression. Coming back witness found a bottle about three parts full of liquor and threw it overboard. Mrs Dougherty asked her why she threw that away, and she said they had got enough, this was not the bottle Mrs Dougherty drank out of, there were three bottles in the boat. Came back to Reed's Landing and there the children got out, Brawn and her husband did not get out there, but the others did. Witness went up to the road with the children and came back to the boat, took the children out because the men were so drunk they were afraid. [illegible] Mr Dougherty there that she can [illegible] Mrs Dougherty said nothing [illegible] afraid of going in the boat [illegible] down to the Point of Rocks [illegible] a good place to stop [illegible]

The Great Blood Remedy is

VEGETINE.

Circulation of the Blood

[illegible]

Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor

[illegible]

Cancer, Cancerous Humor

[illegible]

Mercurial Diseases.

[illegible]

Tumors.

[illegible] When the blood is perfectly cleansed the disease [illegible] rapidly [illegible] all pains cease, health is soon permanently restored and the patient is cured.

Female Weakness.

Vegetine acts directly upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammation, cleanses and cures ulceration, cures constipation, regulates the bowels, headache and pains in the back cease. In fact there is no disease or complaint where the Vegetine gives such quick relief, and is so effective in its cure as in what is termed Female Weakness. It has never failed in one instance.

Canker, Cankerous Humor.

Vegetine will eradicate every trace of Canker or Cankerous Humor from the system. [illegible] off taking Vegetine [illegible] and feeling better [illegible] and effect a cure of the disease. The time and quantity of Vegetine to be taken to effect a cure depends upon the nature and severity of the disease.

Pimples on the Face, AND Eruptions of the Skin.

For this complaint Vegetine is the great remedy. It cleanses and purifies the blood, causing pimples, eruptions and humors to disappear, and does its work in a perfectly natural way. Reason should teach us that a blotchy, rough or pimpled skin depends entirely upon an internal cause, and no outward application can ever cure the defect.

Salt Rheum.

Vegetine has cured many cases of Salt Rheum and many of them of several years standing where many other remedies have failed to effect a cure. All forms of this disease occur most frequently in the spring and autumn, and are usually attended with burning, tingling and very troublesome itching, especially when the blood is in a heated condition. [illegible]

Read the testimonials which appear in this paper every Wednesday and Saturday.

GOOD SEED

Thinking of the subject at this [illegible] it would seem that so many farmers are culpably negligent and thoughtless in the matter of the selection of seed—especially for field [illegible] as the season is rapidly approaching when the subject will again be practically forced upon their notice—we make an earnest appeal for the use of better seed for all farm and garden purposes. It is really a great piece of improvidence to prepare the soil in good condition, manure [illegible] and then plant or sow poor seed. By such [illegible] not only the labor of preparation [illegible] the expectation of increase and profit would be [illegible]

Creditors' Meeting

By virtue of an order from the [illegible] the United States for the District of Maine [illegible] general meeting of the creditors [illegible] will be held at Bangor in said District, on the first day of February A. D. 1875, at the Bankrupt Court Room, before [illegible] for the purposes named in the twenty-seventh section of the Bankrupt Act of March 2, 1867.

Bangor, January 12, 1875.

H. L. MITCHELL, Assignee

District Court of the United States, District of Maine

In the matter of SIMEON F. SMITH Bankrupt, IN BANKRUPTCY

This is to give notice that a petition has been presented to the Court, this first day of January 1875, by Simeon F. Smith of Hampden, a bankrupt, praying that he may be decreed to have a full discharge from all his debts provable under the Bankrupt Act, be dismissed, and upon reading said petition, this 20th day of February 1875.

It is ordered by the Court that a hearing be had upon the same, on the first Monday of May A. D. 1875, before the Court in Portland, in said District, at 10 o'clock A. M., and that the second meeting of the creditors of said Bankrupt be held before Charles Hamlin, Esq., Register, on the fifth day of April 1875, and the third meeting of the same on the fifth day of April 1875, and that notice thereof be published in the Bangor Daily Whig and Courier and the Piscataquis Observer newspapers printed in said District, once a week for three successive weeks, and once in the weekly Bangor Courier, the last publication to be thirty days at least before the day of hearing, and that all creditors who have proved their debts and other persons in interest, may appear at said time and place, and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

WM. P. PREBLE,
Clerk of District Court for said District.
